CHINA PICTORIAL FEATURES

The Powerhouse Province —Zhejiang Soaring

On the twisting-turning and perpetual path to the greater good, the leaders of government and industry to whom the history books will be most kind hold true to a societal course that advances their nation in a moral, ethical and sustainable manner. The broad concept of sustainable development might be fundamentally defined in three parts:

- * Advance industry; but do so with care, control and foresight.

- * Advance culture; but cherish, respect, and learn from the past.

- * Advance society; but know that our society is not the exclusive domain of the powerful inhabiting the capitals of commerce. Our society is of all the land, and held within are all her people.

Today this still developing nation of China struggles to equitably accommodate 1.3 billion citizens while advancing industry and protecting the land. Those citizens are diverse and not equal in education and ability; industry is accelerating at a rapid and problematic pace; the land is vast and its resources are at risk. And ahead are known, unknown and formidable obstacles still to be navigated.

Yet across the nation, within its remarkable and vibrant cities, upon its extraordinary rural landscapes, and among its resourceful and good-hearted people, signposts of collective progress are everywhere.

Those undertaking the honorable quest for progressive and sustainable development are being rewarded-

And Zhejiang thrives.
